In response to Wuhan coronavirus, Yageo not only continues to pay attention to various epidemic prevention matters, but also gives priority to follow the government’s epidemic prevention measures and regulations. The company’s implementation plan for the resumption of work after Lunar New Year holidays is as follows:

1. Taipei Headquarter and Kaohsiung Production Plants:
   Operation will resume on January 30 (Thursday) without any affection.

2. Suzhou and Dongguan Plants:
   Extend Lunar New Year holidays by 10 days to Feb. 9 and resume operation on Feb. 10 (Monday). Local plant operations and employees who work two shifts during the holidays would not be affected.

Due to increasing end-demand, Yageo has actively recruited labors and implemented overtime rewards to increase production capacity before the Lunar New Year, and also encouraged employees to cooperate with overtime during the Lunar New Year holidays in order to maintain basic capacity. Currently following the government’s regulations against Wuhan coronavirus is the priority, the company will take necessary steps to reduce the impact on operations and take more active measures to boost capacity in order to satisfy customer’s demand and still remain cautiously optimistic about the outlook.
